Imagine signing up for a knitting class and having your knitting teacher at your beck and call 24/7. A knitter's dream come true, right? That is exactly what Stefanie Japel's online classes are.

I was lucky to sit in on her Up Cycled T-shirt Class and Fitted Raglan Shawl Class. All classes are taught using pre-recorded videos of Stefanie teaching skills step by step. If you've never taken a class from Stefanie, she has an enthusiastic and warm teaching style that comes across in all of her videos. The videos are short (the longest are 6-7 minutes) so they are easy to watch and it's easy to find just what you need if you want to go back to review a topic or skill.

There are scheduled live chats with Stefanie and the class and a forum to ask questions day or night. There are galleries to post pictures of finished and in progress projects and a slew of PDF handouts, so thorough that I didn't need to take one note.

These on line classes work perfectly for knitting, they are visual, you can work at your own pace, questions can be asked and answered in a timely, if not live, manner, they are social and chatty and you can take your class in your jammies at 2 am, if you'd like. They also open the door to taking classes from teachers you may not have access to otherwise and at a price competitive with your LYS classes.

Her current knitting workshop offerings include: Fitted Raglan Shawl Class, How To Fit Your Knits and Up Cycled T-shirt Yarn Class. Go on you know you want to one. Let Stefanie welcome you to this brilliant way of expanding your knitting repertoire.
